

Educational Philosophy

Merry Pat Dillman

- Children are unique learners with the potential to be successful individuals that positively contribute to society.
- Teachers should be facilitators of education providing their students with strategies needed to become independent learners.
- Individual needs and learning styles must be considered for learning to be meaningful for students.
- Classroom environments should foster a nurturing, caring, respectful, and safe place for students to grow and learn.
- Effective learning includes open communication between teachers, students, parents, and administration.
- Children must be engaged in the learning process to be successful and relevant.
- Maintaining a positive attitude is a key element for a productive learning environment.
- Organization is crucial for learning to take place.
- Assessment should drive instruction.
- High quality instruction is critical in preparing students.
- God is present in every child and classrooms should reflect His spirit.
